NUMBER 22. JUNE 3, 1910, NORWAY, MAINE. VOLUME XLI.

Memorial Observance.

Memorial day was observed this year in its usual way. The village streets were decorated with flags and all the places of business were closed, many of which were decorated with the stars and stripes.

In the early morning the sky was one bank of heavy dark clouds which were very threatening indications of a storm, but after a slight storm it cleared away and was grand.

At nine o'clock the militia met at the armory and at a little past nine marched to G. A. R. hall, led by Lumley band of South Paris, which furnished the music for the day.

From G. A. R. Hall they escorted the Veterans of Harry Rust Post, Ladies of the W. R. C. and the Spanish War Soldiers, to Rustfield cemetery, where the graves of the departed comrades were decorated with wreaths and the stars and stripes, by the soldiers and W. R. C.

Then the line of march was down Main street by way of Paris street to Norway Pine Grove cemetery. Lumley band led, followed by the militia, the Hospital corps, nine Spanish war veterans, and twenty veterans of the Civil war. The W. R. C. went on a special car.

At the cemetery exercises were held near the tomb, amid the singing of birds and the gentle rays of the sun which forced its way, at times, through the gray clouds.

Commander W. S. Cordwell had charge of the exercises which consisted of prayer and the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg speech by the Rev. B. C. Wentworth, and short addresses by Col. Albert J. Stearns, Merton L. Kimball, Charles Bartlett of Auburn, and Rev. M. C. Ward. Each speaker spoke with interest and enthusiasm, setting forth the meaning of Memorial day, with a brief sketch of how victory was gained through the deeds of valor and courage on the part of the Civil war veterans.

The services were followed by the decorating of the soldier's graves. The cemetery was beautifully decorated with flowers, and hardly a lot was not remembered with a bouquet or a profusion of flowers. Memorial has come to mean a day when people's minds are turned to the departed and as tokens of love and esteem, flowers are placed on their resting places.

At noon, dinner was served at G. A. R. hall.

The afternoon exercises were held at the Opera House at 2 30. The scholars of the Primary school and grades occupied the greater portion of the seating capacity of the floor of the hall, while the remainder, both gallery and floor was taken by the public in general, and the house was filled. The program consisted of music by Lumley band, prayer by Rev. M. C. Ward, singing by the scholars of the Primary school, and the grades united in singing Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean, under the direction of the music teacher, Annette Washburn. The male quartet, O. P. Brooks, G. K. Robinson, S. C. Foster and B. C. Wentworth, gave several fine selections, including "We're Tenting To-night at the Old Camp Ground.".

The address of the afternoon was given by Rev. Chester Gore Miller, pastor of the Universalist church of South Paris, who said in part, no traveler can journey through this country of ours and not be impressed with its monuments which have been erected in memory of the soldiers who fought for their country's cause, and laid down their lives to save their country. These monuments inspire and are a means of inspiration to all. It is a great thing to have the schools attend and take active parts in exercises of this nature. You see many do not understand the meaning of this sacred day, this you can see as they do not pay attention to what I am saying, but they will as they grow older. Just such occasions as these they will look back to with pride and feel glad that they took part in exercises of this sort when little children.

Life is shifting continually as you all realize. In ancient Jewish history we find the history of Joseph who was sold by his brothers, and who came to Pharoah. He knew not Joseph neither did he know the outcome.

We can appeal to people and bring out the best that is in them, we can bring out the worst. The same is true of memorials. Imagine how it would be if the older memorials should be taken away and we did not have memorials to remind us, how could the growing generation appreciate them. It would not appeal to the rising generation if you did not observe Memorial day, and what then would inspire the young people?

There are three memorials which stand out to me in the holy book. First, the grand old story in Genesis of the passover, the deliverance of the Jews from bondage, second, the story of Mary anointing the feet of Christ, and third, the holy communion.

The Jews were in bondage for forty years, a long time, and during that time memorials were built, the tombs of kings, the obelisks, and the pyramids, after which they were led to the promised land. At the time when slavery existed in our country it took four years to abolish it, and it has its memorials. We are in bondage for many things and among them are child labor, the liquor traffic and honesty in politics, which will take many years to do away with. We should memorialize things and pass them on to the children. You are preachers of patriotism, it is your birthday, your national birthday and it means so much. Each one has a memorial of some loved one who has gone. Your work was for the betterment of the brotherhood of man, to aid in helping to pass along the cause, a valuable thought and may many years be added to your lives.

The Country Minister.

The senior class of the Norway High school repeated on Memorial night the play entitled The Country Minister, which they staged the first time on the 25th of last February for the benefit of the Norway Athletic Association.

The play was finely presented and well deserved a full house instead of so small an attendance as was present.

The country minister, Rev. Ralph Underwood, was personified by Donald Partridge, who acted out the part of our ministerial friend in a very dignified and pleasing manner, and who through his keen insight and able judgment of human beings aided in making straight the crooked places which became his duty and thus the wrongs were righted.

Gregory Heath, R. Brooks, was a rather two faced character, and when money was needed dared to go to the farthest extremity to secure the almighty dollar regardless of the consequences on the lives he tried to crush.

Jud. Pardoe, G. Felch, a wreck on the ocean of life, was the portrayal of a man who had no conception of right and wrong, was a thief, a murderer and went so far as to even plot to take the life of his own daughter.

Timothy Hodd, in the person of Roland Kimball, was a kind of a happy-go-lucky fellow, who would rather sit and whittle than do anything else in the world except work, although he did labor hard to secure Jerusha for his wife by sewing carpet rags, while old Deacon Potter, Harold Anderson, who was a trifle deef, rather elderly and pretty stiff jointed, was his rival, much to Jerusha's pleasure in times of doubt.

William Henry, Hartley Greenleaf, a young fellow rather full of fun, who liked to go a fishing for fish but fishing for hearts he liked best. His opponent, Tom Sparrow, A. Frost, who couldn't talk plain and was continually picking up a row with Will, was on equally good terms with Roxy, who loved to set them to quarreling.

Helen Burleigh, Dorothy Tubbs, a fine appearing young lady with the air of refinement and culture and an heiress to a fortune, was the leading lady and the one around whom the plot of the play is woven.

Jerusha Jane Judkins, Ethel Brown, was the mistress of Mullenville post-office and a woman of trials was she, first over one thing, then over another, but her love affair was her chief great perplexity as she couldn't decide between her two suitors.

Roxy, the fresh air kid, Gladys Buck, was the life of the play. Full of fun, up to all kinds of pranks, a real tom boy but a favorite of all. What she couldn't think of wasn't worth doing, yet she was loved by them all.

Granny Grimes, Minnie Upton, took the part of the old woman in her degredation, in quivering voice and shaking limb to perfection. She was a great lover of some spirits to warm her up a bit.

The maid Fanny, Marion Lafrance, kept an eye on the thief and at the proper time aided in his capture by keeping the officer Filkins, G. Stevens, posted on his whereabouts.

Mrs. Fogg was accompanist during the evening.

The story of the play is this: Gregory Heath wishes to marry Helen Burleigh, not for his true love but for her money. She puts him off from time to time. She meets Rev. Mr. Underwood and likes his appearance. In the meantime Gregory steals some of her money and she finds it out, so upon his next visit he finds he cannot succeed in marrying her so plots to steal her money. Mr. Underwood knows the plan for he was at the house where Roxy was put after being stolen when the plot was made and thus saves Helen from further trouble with Gregory. The last scene is at Mullenville and all are happily reunited at Jerusha Jane Judkins' home, where she is entertaining her two old lovers.

News from F. W. Sanborn, who is at Moosehead lake fishing says:—"I got a big catch of fish Monday, 17 pounds, am working from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily, when it don't rain. Am running a smoke-house fishing and exploring but the rain interferes with us to-day. Want to stop a little longer so as to get some fly fishing. I've got so I can eat most anything that comes along and am feeling O K."

Ball Game Saturday.

The game next Saturday will be with the Westbrook team at the Fair Grounds, at 2 o'clock sharp. This team is reported to be very fast, and will keep the Radcliffe team on their toes to win. With good weather there should be a crowd to see the game. The weather has so far kept the attendance down. Come out and see the game next Saturday, and show the directors of the Norway Base Ball Association that you appreciate their efforts to give Norway and the surrounding towns a chance to see some good, fast base ball.

Mr. Flavin, who umpired some of the games here last season, said that the Radcliffe team could step into the New England league and hold its own in that organization, and indeed we saw last summer as fast base ball as was played in the New England league and will see it this summer if the sports will show by their attendance that they want it.

The lineup of the Westbrooks is as follows: Buotte, c., LeConte, p., Elliott, p., Briard, 1b., Feeney, 2b., Tetreault, ss., McLellan, 3b., McFarland, lf., Bryden, rf., Letarte, cf., Berule, infielder. Elliott will probably pitch. (This is not the Elliott who pitches for the Mohawks)

SOUTH PARIS.

Base Ball.

The Lumley Castle team played and won two games Saturday at the High school grounds. The first was with a team of boys from Mechanic Falls, and resulted 14 to 4 in favor of Lumley. The second game was with some "little fellers" who came from Buckfield, and the score was "28 or something to 4," also in favor of Lumley.

M. F. H. S. 7; P. H. S., 6.

Mechanic Falls won from Paris, Saturday at Mechanic Falls. In the first game Lawler completely puzzled the Paris boys but in this one they bit him at will. One reason for the better hitting was the new batting order.

In the tenth inning neither side scored. A double play spoiled the last chance for Paris. Lowell walked Whitman who stole second while Lord was striking out and then third. The decisions in both cases were very close, the base runner being favored. Meserve then put the ball over Bigelow's head, bringing Whitman in with the winning run and only one man out. Score:

George H. Busswell, Marston St., Norway, Me., says: "About six months ago my kidneys became disordered and I began to suffer from dull pains across the small of my back. A languid feeling came over me, and I was unable to rest well. I also noticed that the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage although the flow was scanty. My body often bloated and I was also troubled with dull headaches. I read that Doan's Kidney Pills had rid other persons of similar troubles, and deciding to try them, I procured a box from Stone's drug store. They cured me and I am perfectly free from kidney complaint at the present time." 22-23

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the Mucous Lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Trend Toward the Farm.

It begins to look as though the farmer has got to pay the prices that other people pay for labor. The panic made the situation a little easier, but it has not relieved it permanently. It will be easier for a few years, but manufacturing and other enterprises will again absorb the supply of labor and leave the farmer just as he was.

Hats in Church.

Major Henry Murray Calvert, a citizen of New York and an active member of the Episcopal church, has begun a comparatively mild but absolutly positive crusade against the feminine custom of wearing big hats in church. The title connected with his name suggests that Mr. Calvert is brave, and the name itself is one that will sound well as it goes echoing down the halls of time, whether he succeeds or whether he fails and expires in the last ditch as he is bound to do if he cannot conquer.

Major Calvert has written a letter to the rector of his church in which he indicates what are suitable and becoming hats to be worn by women during divine service as substitutes for the very unsuitable and out-of-place headgear now worn by them. In other words, he would save the situation by calling upon the arbiters of style in the fashionable world to devise a church fashion to offset for the time being the world fashion which he regards as so much out of place. When one church has adopted this suggestion, he believes other congregations would imitate the good example and much of the discontent and grumbling and talk about leaving the church, on the part of the men, would pass away.

In his letter to the rector, Major Calvert points out that "we men" have long borne patiently and in silence the annoyance and injustice of having our vision and hearing seriously obstructed by the dimensions and elaborate furnishings of women's hats in church.

He does not understand why men's rights in so important a matter should be constantly ignored, and he ventures to predict, basing his prediction on the mutterings of discontent now everywhere to be heard, that unless a reform soon comes about through the generosity and good sense of the women themselves, a large number of men will withdraw from the church and refuse to contribute to its support. He emphasizes this point by declaring that he shall certainly be of the rebel band, for he is tired of peering through vistas of women's headgear in the hope of being able to catch a fleeting view occasionally of what is going on in the chancel and of straining his ears amidst thickets of millinery in an effort to hear what the preacher is saying.

Major Calvert goes on to say that public opinion has finally righted this "long-endured vexation" in theaters, lecture and concert rooms, and, seeing the advantage thus gained, it is not strange that the removal of women's hats in churches should also be advocated especially as the floors of churches are built on a level, while those of theaters are sloping.

As tradition and custom in Episcopal and Catholic places of worship require that a woman's head shall be covered during service, though the covering may be nothing more than a veil, Major Calvert would be content with a reasonable compromise in the shape of such a hat as shall enable attendants at church to see and hear with the minimum of discomfort while engaged in their devotions.

It is conceded that fashion may be as unlimited as it pleases in the construction of hats that are appropriate in public parks, for garden parties and for street wear, but the hat that covers the head of a woman in church should, in the interest of all those worshippers who sit behind her, be characterized by the moderation of its length and breadth, its height and depth. Major Calvert believes that the matter is one for conference and the exercise of a sound judgment. He also says that if the women of the churches, recognizing these things as necessities, resolve to treat them as necessities, they have an opportunity to introduce a notable and most useful reform. The self-denial, he declares, is not much, for there is as abundant room for the display of taste and elegance in a suitable hat as there is in an unsuitable one.—[Biddeford Journal.

WEST BUCKFIELD.

Harry Buck's children are ill with the measles.

Mary Farrar, who has been in Auburn, has returned home.

Mrs. Leslie Cummings was at Mechanic Falls last week to meet her mother, Mrs. Dunn.

Mrs. Leah Buswell and children are away on a visit. Roy Buswell is at Irving Smith's.

Simon H. Smith of East Dixfield is one of the grand old men in Oxford county. He was born Oct. 1, 1817, and will therefore be 93 years of age this fall. He ascribes his excellent health (he has never required the services of a physician) to the fact that he has been temperate in all things, never used intoxicating liquor, tobacco, tea or coffee. He also prides himself on the fact that no one ever dunned him for money and that he never resorted to a dunning letter to collect a debt. Mr. Smith is a finely preserved old man, in full possession of all his faculties and in close touch with all the activities of the day.

Lovely Complexion.

A Clear Skin and Bright Eyes are Easy to Get.

All the beauty creams in creation won't improve your complexion if your stomach is out of order.

Belching of gas and heartburn mean bad food in the stomach. Bad food means bad blood and bad blood means a bad complexion.

Try Mi-o-na stomach tablets for stomach misery, biliousness, dizziness and indigestion. They relieve in a few minutes; they make rich, red blood. They are guaranteed to cure or money back.

Read what a Kansas woman says:

"I want to praise Mi-o-na stomach tablets, for I had been doctoring for over a year for stomach trouble and found nothing that did me as much good as Mi-o-na does. I only have the second box and it has relieved all pain in my stomach.

For all who suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion, Mi-o-na can't be beaten. You can use my name for Mi-o-na has done a world of good for me when doctors failed."—Mrs. Cordelia B. Mann, 207 E. 11th St., Junction City, Kans. Nov. 1, 1909.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and by Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, for 50 cents a large box. Test samples free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y. 22&24

Though of an extremely light weight, they retain their shapes because of the L. & H. sizing and special drying and pressing process. Edges are carefully treated to prevent breaking down. The oval is so shaped as to make an easy and comfortable fit, so that an L. & H. stays on without binding the head. The silk trimmings and linings are those that appeal to the well-dressed man. The "Man who Cares" lays his hat down so that the L. & H. mark shows.

ICE FOR THE FARM HOME.

How to Secure and How to Store the Crop For Future Use.

Ice is as workable as wood, so it can be either split or sawed into desirable sections for handling and storing. Commercial ice making is generally carried on with an eye single to rapidity rather than accuracy in cake dimensions, so the ice plow is used and the cakes split off, thus leaving the under side of each cake irregular, making close storage impossible. The slower and better process for the farmer is the ice saw or, in lieu of this, the common crosscut saw, which is found on nearly all farms. Lake or pond ice has the preference over river ice, due to the fact that there is no current beneath. Pond ice freezes thicker and is less liable to contain air bubbles, meaning clearer and more uniform cakes.

Avoid slush or snow ice as much as possible. Watch for those several days of continuous hard freezing, then tap the ice field at its best. Six inch ice is of course good, but eighteen inch is better, as the thicker the cake the better its keeping quality. Clear the field of snow and with either line or straightedge mark off the cakes to be cut, using any sharp pointed instrument for the marking. An old file makes a good tool for the purpose. Mark the field off into eighteen inch squares, being careful to have cakes cut exactly to measure, for in no other way can close storage be accomplished. Cut out corner cake with an ax and start the saw exactly on the line, holding saw straight up and down. Remove one handle from the saw and in its place attach a small weight, said weight adding much to the rapidity of the sawing. Two pairs of ice tongs at about 50 cents each complete the outfit for the farmer's ice harvest.

In building an icehouse get good, smooth drop siding for the outside and paint it. For the interior any old lumber will do, for all that is necessary is something to hold the sawdust used in packing from the outer wall. Leave spaces between studding open at the top. To accomplish this the inside sheathing should stop at about four inches below the plate at top of studding, thus allowing the side air to flow out and over the stored mass, thence out through small windows which should be provided in each end of the building and as near the peak as possible. These openings should be filled with upward slanting blinds thereby forcing inflowing air currents upward and away from the ice, insuring free circulation at all times. These openings should never be closed, for through them must escape dampness that stored ice always produces.

The size of the building must be determined by the amount of ice to be used. If for family use only, then 12 by 14 feet, with eight foot studding, will give ample storage space, but for dairy use the building should be enlarged in proportion to the demands put upon it.

A Wisconsin farmer puts up such an icehouse as is shown in the illustration at a very low cost. Each winter he fills it when he could be doing little else. He has half a dozen customers to whom he supplies ice during the summer and makes a handsome profit from the transaction.

Possum Hunting In Queensland.

Among the ways of earning a living in the colony of Queensland the collecting of fur skins combines considerable profit with a fine, adventurous life in the open air in the "bush"—the term which describes all country parts, plain, hill and forest, away from the settlements. The possum is protected by the government of Queensland till May 1, on which date young men issue forth for a campaign against the wily animal whose skin makes such beautiful carriage and other rugs and forms the material for ladies' furs all over Europe. Formerly shooting was resorted to, but now trapping is found to be the most efficacious means of securing a good bag. Most of the trappers work in couples or employ a native, and snares of thin wire are used.

Removing Scale From Water Jackets.

Scale usually may be removed from within the water jacket by means of a 20 per cent solution of muriatic acid, says the Nautical Gazette. The jacket is filled with this solution and allowed to remain three or four hours to dissolve the scale, which may then be blown out. Care must be taken to avoid burns from the acid. The jacket must be carefully washed out afterward with clear water.

The Horse's Prayer.

To thee, My Master, I offer my prayer. Feed me, water and care for me, and when the day's work is done, provide me with shelter, a clean, dry bed, and a stall wide enough for me to lie down in comfort.

Always be kind to me. Talk to me. Your voice often means as much to me as the reins. Pet me sometimes, that I may serve you the more gladly and learn to love you. Do not jerk the reins and do not whip me when going up hill. Never strike, beat or kick me when I do not understand what you want, but give me a chance to understand you. Watch me, and if I fail to do your bidding, see if something is not wrong with my harness or feet.

Do not check me so I cannot have the free use of my head. If you insist that I wear blinders, so that I cannot see behind me as it was intended that I should, I pray you be careful that the blinders stand well out from the eyes.

Do not overload me or hitch me where water will drip on me. Keep me well shod. Examine my teeth when I do not eat; I may have an ulcerated tooth, and that, you know, is very painful. Do not tie my head in an unnatural position or take away my best defense against flies and mosquitoes by cutting off my tail.

I cannot tell you when I am thirsty so give me clean, cool water often. Save me, by all means in your power, from that fatal disease—the glanders. I cannot tell you in words when I am sick; so watch me, that by signs you may know my condition. Give me all possible shelter from the hot sun and put a blanket on me, not when I am working, but when I am standing in the cold. Never put a frosty bit in my mouth; first warm it it by holding it a moment in your hands.

I try to carry you and your burdens without a murmur, and wait patiently for you long hours of the day or night. Without the power to choose my shoes or path, I sometimes fall on the hard pavements, which I have often prayed might not be of wood, but of such a nature as to give me a safe and sure footing. Remember that I must be ready at any moment to lose my life in your service.

And finally, O My Master, when my useful strength is gone, do not turn me out to starve or freeze, or sell me to some cruel owner to be slowly tortured and starved to death; but do Thou, Master, take my life in the kindest way, and God will reward you here and hereafter. You will not consider me irreverent if I ask this in the name of Him who was born in a stable. Amen.

Favorite Summer Birds.

The sweetest warblers are usually found near inhabited lands. The bobolink, whose rich, deep notes adorn the meadow in harvest time, never seeks the forest or wild sections of country. As he sings, atilt on a clover blossom, if you listen and say, "thank you, Robert o' Lincoln," he is almost sure to respond with an encore just as if he appreciated your applause. They haunt cultivated grass fields because of the insects that abound. The supply is never exhausted for their young. Search in the wake of the mower during haymaking time if you would find the bobolink's nest.

It is quite probable that these birds were few in number previous to the settlement of America by the Europeans, owing to the small amount of land that was tilled. Experience has shown that bobolink, song sparrow, linnet, and robin have increased according to the spread of literature. What a beneficent act on the part of an all wise Creator to thus provide for the protection of the agriculturist from insects. Were it not for the birds, it would be impossible to attain success in this branch of industry.

In the latter part of June, the summer birds join with the earlier warblers in their more vehement and musical strains. As the morning stars grow fainter and the ruddy light fringes the east, a single note of challenge is uttered. Soon the feathered sleepers are all awake and the chorus of song arises like an ocean of music. At midday the singing of the larger number of birds is finished until another dawn, but the vireo and bobolink are always full of music to overflowing.

The swamp sparrow finds his favorite perch on the limb of a dead tree in a wild brook where his sweet note is often the only sound that disturbs the forest solemnity. The chewink, redstart, oven bird, flicker, grosbeak, and scarlet tanger are other favorites, whose habits it is worth while to know.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said:

"'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was smell and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost.'"

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now—she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired out that you can't eat. Just light a Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. But the room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no drudgery in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Mrs. Howard Maxim.

The sad news came yesterday from Rev. Mr. Banghart of the funeral of Mrs. Howard Maxim of Bird Hill, Bethel. Her maiden name was Nettie B. Cummings and it seems only a few years ago that the writer had her name among the pupils in that school. We will give the names of scholars as then recorded:—Nettie B. Cummings age 8, Clara E. Jordan, 13; Mamie E. Jordan, 6; May L. Fifield, 7; Mattie L. Jordan, 10; John E. Fifield, 11; Harry E. Bryant, 10; Fred F. Jordan, 8; C. N. Bryant, 14; C. W. Jordan age 14, Hattie A. Thomas, 8.

As far as we know this is the first death among that number and she was one of the best of girls at home and at school. We think this was in the year 1885. Her memory will ever be held in loving remembrance by her old teacher, who is now writing these words. Her place will never be filled as a daughter and wife and mother and friend. Here is a lovely verse found among our keepsakes. To Nellie:

"May your path ever be among the fields of peace, health, happiness and plenty,
Where flowers are always blooming around;
May kind, gentle and true friends ever be with and protect thee;
And may you enjoy all the pleasures and sweets of a virtuous and useful life,
Is the sincere wish of M. E. B."

Back Woods, Jan. 30, 1886.

The writer well knows if Death had not taken (or worse than death) the truest one away this wish would have been realized by the one to whom these lines were written.

Several are on the sick list.

John Zale of Rumford Center has been here recently buying live stock. He bought all of the chicks at Maple and Pine Farm.

We almost started to go to Buckfield to hear the speaking of James Roy Packard, son of J. B. Packard of Monmouth. If he is like his father he is a fine speaker and well might choose the profession of a lawyer or minister or public speaker in any capacity.

The graves of our honored veterans have once more been remembered and exercises appropriate for the occasion been held in our village, Bethel Hill. The schools were well represented, marching with flags to the soldiers' monument, where speeches and songs were enjoyed for awhile. May each year bring fresh memories and flowers to honor those who saved the Flag.

GRAFTON.

Will Bartlett sheared George Muse's sheep last week.

Mr. Milton of Andover and Henry Inmann were in town, Saturday, looking for calves.

F. W. Tyler hauled a load of birch from Bethel to Lakeside, N. H., for Tom Warren last week.

Ceylon Rowe and Mr. Herrick, also Fred and Clarence Hall of Bethel were in town last week, fishing and report good luck.

Fred Ordway, wife and child, also Mr. and Mrs. Maxim of South Paris stopped in town the first of the week and enjoyed a picnic dinner and fishing, enroute to Errol, N. H., to visit Mrs. Grover, Mrs. Ordway's mother.

Grafton people are sorry to learn of the death of one of our oldest residents, your former correspondent, Mrs. Mary Otis at the home of her daughter, Franc Dicker of Lewiston, which occurred on Tuesday morning at 10 a. m., after a short illness. She will be brought to Grafton for burial and the funeral will be held on Thursday. Particulars are not known at this writing.

Memorial Exercises.

The annual Memorial sermon before Wm. K. Kimball Post, G. A. R., The Ladies of the G. A. R. and Joshua L. Chamberlain Camp, Sons of Veterans, was delivered at the Congregational church, Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, by Rev. A. T. McWhorter.

Appropriate music was rendered by the Baptist choir with Hattie Leach as soprano.

Mr. McWhorter spoke in his usual earnest and interesting manner from Psalm 137, 5th and 6th verses. He said if it was not irreverent he would like to change the text in this 20th century so that it might read "If I forget thee, O America, let my right hand forget her cunning etc." He then proceeded to give some of the reasons why as Americans we should be patriotic.

1st, the size of America and by figures and comparisons he impressed all present with a new appreciation of the vastness of our country; 2d, the opportunities afforded; 3d, liberty for all; 4th, the sacrifice. He illustrated this by picturing the battle of Gettysburg with its awful slaughter of human life and he urged that Memorial Day be kept sacred to its purpose without desecration. He then stated that Patriotism should show itself in this 20th century, 1st by obedience to all law, 2d by taking a broad view and by ever standing for the right. He closed by giving the spiritual application that the war is ever on between light and darkness, the conflict against "principalities and powers," and urged all to enlist in this warfare under the banner of King Emmanuel.

The exercises Monday commenced after the arrival of the morning train which brought Comrade L. C. Bateman of Lewiston who was the speaker of the day.

The line of march was formed in front of the depot under the direction of Commander Franklin Maxim. The procession was led by the South Paris band followed by the Sons of Veterans, some 40 strong, who acted as escort to the Grand Army men.

William K. Kimball Post numbers 40 members and although they average 70 years of age fully 35 of them were in the march. Following the veterans came the ladies of the G. A. R. with more than 50 members.

Bringing up the rear were the school children and they might well be called the feature of the parade. The little girls were dressed in white and carried flags. This part of the line was commanded and led by Mrs. Isaac Monk.

The return march was made past the soldiers' monument where the line divided and with muffled drum and uncovered heads passed on in silence. Then around Moore Park, the line marched and on reaching the public street the Norway Light Infantry appeared to escort them back to the hall. This was a courtesy that was rightly appreciated, not only by the veterans and allied bodies but by all the citizens as well.

On reaching the hall the Norway Light Infantry drew up in line and presented arms as the old soldiers filed past them into the town hall.

The afternoon exercises were held in the town hall with Franklin Maxim acting as chairman. On the platform were Silas P. Maxim, Harry Farrar, Porter Stearns, Capt. Wm. R. Swan, Daniel Stevens, Col. Wm. T. Evans, Rev. E. A. Davis, Martha Maxim, Commander Ingalls F. Evans, Winfield Starbird, Arline Crocker, Belle Ames and the speaker of the day. Program:

Address.....Comrade L. C. Bateman

Mr. Bateman in his address paid tribute to those brave men, the private soldiers, to do justice to whom one day of year has been set apart, and reviewed the particular ceremony of the day, the placing of flowers, as originating in the universal hope of immortality which man entertains. The soldiers of the ancient powers were compared with the soldiers of our civil war, fighting for a principle, and the great military commanders of history, fighting for personal aggrandizement, were contrasted with the great generals of our own war, fighting for their country without thought of gain to themselves. The citizens were urged to keep green the graves of the veterans, and maintain the fires of patriotism, and a special message was given to the living comrades, and a special remembrance to those who are gone.

OXFORD.

Memorial Services.

Rev. Mr. Baldwin of Portland, preached another of his characteristic sermons Sunday. His text was taken from the 38th chapter of Job, 3d verse. "Gird up thy loins now like a man."

Mr. Baldwin spoke of the importance of the day, as being the Anniversary of of National Commemoration and that we should review and recall the deeds and patriotism of the veterans. He compared our national sources of supply to the tributaries of the Amazon over a mighty force for purification, and that while there is no sign of war or internal strife, there are silent forces at work that will destroy, just as surely as they did at Greece and Rome.

There is a call and a demand for the best intellect, patriotism's sacrifice and devotion, if we would uphold our nation's prosperity and honor. He also spoke of the lack of respect and evasion of the laws. That our laws the result of careful thought, and we should arouse ourselves to the fact that the only liberty worth having is that which observes the very spirit and letter of the laws.

Mr. Baldwin made a great plea for the home and national honor, denouncing the spirit of graft, demaralizing literature and moral evils. He also dwelt upon the desecration of the Sabbath, the neglected homes and the empty churches.

Mr. Baldwin aptly brought his text to the present needs, saying that we should arouse ourselves, gird up our loins, and meet the evils, put down the foe and take a stand with Christ who will lead us to victory.

Decoration day was observed in the usual appropriate manner. The parade was formed at 10 a. m., at the school yard and headed by the band marched through Pleasant street to King street to Riverside cemetery, where the decoration service was carried out. At close of the service the line of march was taken up, through King street to the High street cemetery. At close of service the line was re-formed and marched to Robinson hall where dinner was served to over 200 people.

At 2 p. m., the meeting, at the Methodist church, was called to order by Julius Fuller, and the following program carried out: prayer by Rev. Mr. Bruce of Spurr's Corner; music, quartet; recitation, Fred Pottle, "The Heroes Sleeping;" Augusta Wardwell, "Dream of the U. S. A.; recitation, Doris Andrews, Nothing but Flags;" music, quartet.

Mr. Fuller now introduced N. P. Noble of Phillips who talked for three-quarters of an hour in a very pleasing and interesting manner. Mr. Noble was born in East Oxford, attended the public schools in town and attended church in the building from which he spoke, more than 40 years ago. Mr. Noble was listened to with close attention and his talk pronounced one of the best heard here in many years.

A sad accident marred the day. David Muse, an old veteran, fell upon the steps of Robinson hall and broke his left hip. Mr. Muse was moved to his boarding place and medical help summoned.

School Entertainment.

The senior class of O. H. S. held an entertainment and box sale in S. of T. hall, Monday night. The hall was filled to overflowing with a good natured crowd that was prepared to enjoy everything. The laughable farce, "Freezing a Mother-in-law," was first on the program and served to put all in good humor and showed the possibilities of the patent freezing mixture. Anyone who wishes to experiment with the liquid can do so by calling on Prof. John L. Dyer, principal of O. H. S.

The senior class reaped a neat benefit which will go towards paying their graduating expenses. Following is the program:

How to Mend China.

The most successful way to mend broken china is the following formula: Powder a small quantity of lime and take the white of one egg and mix together to a paste. Apply this quickly to the china to be mended, place the broken pieces together firmly, and they will become set and strong. It is unusual when china breaks in the same place again after being mended with this paste.

How to Make a Turkey Feather Fan.

Get pasteboard fans, such as are used for advertising. Paint handles with black varnish paint. Cover the pasteboard with a layer of glue, on which arrange the down feathers so each row of feathers covers the stems of the last, as one circle after another narrows toward the center.

CARPET AND RUG TREATMENT.

How They Can Be Cleaned and Made to Last Longer.

To spoil a carpet sweep it with a stiff, half worn broom, but to save a carpet dip your broom in clean, hot suds once a week, then shake it out and hang it up to dry.

Rugs should be beaten on the wrong side, then swept on the right side. Spots may be removed by the use of ox gall or ammonia and water, using a sponge or flannel. Slightly moistened bran is equally as good as salt in brightening rugs and carpets.

Vinegar will remove lime spots. Soot from an open chimney or the careless handling of stovepipes can be removed by covering thickly with salt, and this afterward can be brushed up quickly without injury to the carpets. Spirits of ammonia diluted with water, if applied with sponge or flannel to discolored spots, will often restore the color.

Remove ink stains with milk, and after soaking up all that seems possible either sprinkle thickly with salt or wash with a pure white soap, a clean brush and warm water.

For grease spots use powdered magnesia, fuller's earth or buckwheat flour. Sprinkle on spots and let it lie until grease is absorbed. Renew the flour or other absorbent material as often as necessary.

When carpet moths are discovered, after removing all artificial lights in the room saturate the cracks in the floor with benzine. Wash upper edge of the carpet with a solution containing sixty parts of poison to one part of alcohol. Be extremely careful about using this if there are children about.

For ingrain or three ply carpets wring a cloth out of hot water and lay it over the edges or binding and iron with an iron as hot as can be without scorching. This destroys the moth as well as the eggs. Wilton and the heavier carpets must be steamed on the underside.

A good solution to use in wiping up the floor before putting down the rugs or carpets is as follows: A quarter of a pound of red pepper steeped in a gallon of water, to which are added two drams of strychnia powder.

TREATING RHEUMATISM.

How to Secure Relief From a Very Painful Ailment.

To cure rheumatism it is necessary to rid the system of the excess of uric acid, and to do this a proper diet is even more important than the use of drugs, though in very severe cases the latter are not to be despised in conjunction with the dieting that is absolutely essential.

The Massachusetts General hospital of Boston allows the following diet for its rheumatic patients: Graham or brown bread, white bread (limited to one-half slice daily), corn, granum, rice, milk, eggs, flour, puddings, crackers, beans, peas, all kinds of vegetables except potatoes, tomatoes and asparagus, rhubarb, fresh fish, butter, cheese, buttermilk, cream, alkaline waters and toast. Avoid red meats, starch or potatoes, white bread and sugars.

The sensible use of water, both internally and externally, plays a large part in the prevention or cure of rheumatism. One or two glasses, either hot or cold, taken before breakfast every morning is excellent to start the organs of digestion for the day, and at least one glass should be taken between meals. Often the plain water will be enough to move a slightly constipated person, but if not a mild medicated water may be taken instead. It is very essential to keep the bowels open in cases of rheumatism.

Uric acid in the system is a poison, and it must not be forgotten that poisonous waste matter is also eliminated through the skin. The pores of the skin must be kept freely open and not allowed to become clogged if we hope to obtain the best results with rheumatic cases. A hot bath at bedtime is often very helpful.—Delineator.

How to Sew Lace to a Centerpiece.

A new way to put lace on a round centerpiece is to turn the material up on the right side. Just the tiniest edge is turned, and it may be necessary to slit it occasionally to make it lie flat. The thread of the lace is drawn for a gathering and the lace put around the centerpiece on top of the turned back edge. It must be held just full enough to lie flat, but not to ruffle. After the lace is basted on it may either be sewed firmly by machine or hand. Then outline the inner edge with a heavy cable stitch, using a twisted long thread cotton. This makes a smart finish and is much quicker than the usual buttonholed edge with lace sewed underneath.

Blood Humors

Commonly cause pimples, boils, hives, eczema or salt rheum, or some other form of eruption; but sometimes they exist in the system, indicated by feelings of weakness, languor, loss of appetite, or general debility, without causing any breaking out.

They are expelled and the whole system is renovated, strengthened and toned by

Rainy.

Rain on, rain on, the Day is gone,
The withered garlands lay
Where loving hands have placed them
Over dear ones passed away,
Where Love and Grief come hand in hand
Each Decoration Day.
Rain gently on each lowly mound,
And bid the earth rejoice,
Bring blessings to the thirsty ground,
Most bounteous and choice;
Awake new life and beauty 'round,
With the Creator's voice.
Rain on, revive the drooping flowers
We scattered in the dust,
And may our tears that fall like showers
Refresh the hearts of us;
Bring courage to these souls of ours
To bear the griefs we must.

Woman's World

A NEW OPERATIC STAR.

Countess Cassini, Niece of Former Ambassador, to Sing In Paris.

Since the first dawned on Washington society twelve years ago, at the age of seventeen, Marguerite Cassini, as she was then, has been a live wire in every community in which she has mingled. The announcement she is to make her debut shortly in grand opera in Paris serves merely to keep her as prominently as ever in the public eye. When Miss Cassini first went to Washington she found her position somewhat indefinite, for she was only the niece of the Russian ambassador, Count Arthur Cassini, and the ladies of the other embassies rather balked at yielding her precedence. These formal difficulties were cleared away, however, when the czar of Russia made Miss Cassini a countess in her own right.

The young countess was a close friend of Mrs. McKinley, and when Roosevelt succeeded to the presidency her intimacy with Alice Roosevelt, who was not then the wife of Nicholas Longworth, made her social standing in Washington still stronger. But when Count Cassini was transferred to Madrid, a change which many believe was due to the social jealousy entertained by the family of the British ambassador, Sir Mortimer Durand, against the young Countess Cassini, the situation became complicated grievously with the receipt of a quiet hint that the Spanish court, which is second only to that of Austria in exclusiveness, would not receive the Countess Marguerite. As a result Count Cassini went to Madrid alone, and the countess, his niece, has just completed a period of study in Paris which all who knew her in this country hope may lead her to the topmost heights of success on the operatic stage.

American Women.

"The American woman's intellectual characteristic is curiosity," says Marcel Prevost in Harper's Bazar. "One feels she would like to have ten pairs of eyes so as to see everything, ten pairs of ears so as to hear everything. When I sit down at table beside an American woman of Paris she immediately asks me: 'Have you seen such and such a play? Have you been to such and such an art exhibition? What do you think of this novel or of that philosophical or historical book recently published?' And I am forced to admit that I have not seen the latest play; that for more than ten years I have not set my foot inside the annual 'salons;' that I read slowly and carefully and am therefore forced to read but few books. And I know my American neighbor feels great disdain for my inculture. Still I have infinite sympathy for her charming and universal intellectual curiosity.

"There is consequently an abyss between the way most American women I have met conceive intellectual culture and my own way. Far from me to pretend that I am right. And I give thanks to heaven, which sends us in the American women of Paris the most wonderful public for books or theaters or lectures. But if I had the honor of being professor of French to young American girls I would begin with the following truthful anecdote:

"A compatriot of theirs, speaking to the poet Francois Coppee, asked:

"'Do you speak English, monsieur?'

"And Coppee answered modestly:

"'Non, madame. I am still learning French.'"

Tetrazzini Met Patti.

During her year as chatelaine of the Mansion House Lady Truscott, the lady mayoress of London, has acted as hostess to 25,000 guests.

"The most brilliant event of my year," says Lady Truscott, "was the great concert last May in aid of the National Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, an organization in which I am deeply interested. A charming incident occurred in connection with this concert. Mme. Tetrazzini wrote to tell me that she had never heard Mme. Patti sing and would give anything to hear her. I invited Mme. Tetrazzini, and I had the great pleasure of bringing the two prima donnas together in my drawing room. Mme. Tetrazzini fell on her knees and kissed the hand of Mme. Patti, in homage, she said, to the greatest singer of the age."

The following article is taken from the Portland Press: "It can be said with perfect truth that the song recital given by Howard R. Stevens in the studio of Llewellyn B. Cain recently, was one of the most artistic and finished that it has been the good fortune of Portland people to hear in a long time. From the beginning to the end of the charming program there was always the utmost distinction of style, a delightful ease and such admirable restraint that the result was rarely satisfying. Mr. Stevens' voice, always of most agreeable quality, is handled with such skill and taste and when necessary, with a dramatic power, that merits only the highest and fullest praise. He was ably seconded by Howard W. Clark at the piano, whose accompaniments were in themselves masterly and in such entire sympathy with the singer that the effect was wonderfully fine." Mr. Stevens is by no means a stranger to Norway people as he has sung in several concerts which have been given here and also has classes in voice culture at Mrs. H. L. Horne's on Main street.

The Radcliffes and South Portland crossed bats on Monday afternoon and a good sized crowd was present and saw a good and close game. The visitors had their regular team and the home boys had to hustle every minute to win the game. Readon, for the visitors, gave five bases on balls and hit two men in the first two innings. After that he settled down and pitched a good game.

The visitors took the lead in the first half of the sixth on some swell hitting and base running, scoring 3 runs, but the locals came right back in their half and scored 3 runs on hits by Farnum, Harrison and Lanan, and two errors. Daly, of Lewiston, umpired the game and kept the two teams hustling. The game next Saturday is with Westbrook. The score:

Memorial Services.

Memorial services were held at the Methodist church, Sunday morning at 10.30. There was a very large attendance at these services.

The music was furnished by the choir: Clara Conner, Mrs. Belle Decoster, S. C. Foster and O. P. Brooks; and by the male quartet: Rev. B. C. Wentworth, Geo. R. Robinson, S. C. Foster and Owen P. Brooks, with Mrs. Cragin at the organ.

There was a fine representation present from the soldiers of the Grand Army, the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps, the militia and the soldiers of the Spanish war, besides a large number of friends.

The church was decorated with the Stars and Stripes and with potted plants, ferns and flowers.

Rev. B. C. Wentworth, pastor of the church, delivered the Memorial sermon. He chose for his text the words, "A good soldier of Jesus Christ," from II Timothy 2:3.

He said in part, Paul used figurative language to illustate that which he wished to impress upon the minds of the people. No doubt he had seen the tiers of people in the Coloseum who had watched them prepare for the races by laying aside all that would hinder in the winning of the race. So let us to-day put aside all that would hinder in running the race and put on the whole armor of God.

A soldier's life is the type of a Christian life, for first he takes into account the cost, then he enlists. He is no longer his own but belongs to his master. A good soldier should think that no office which he fills is unimportant however menial it may be. For illustration take the dykes of Holland. You ask, who built them? The answer comes the government. No, it is not the government but the working man, and the same is true of the cities. Then, who saved the republic, was it the officers? No, it was the soldiers. The officers could not do it alone but each in his place was the essential point, and what holds true in these soldiers, holds true in the soldiers of Christ. These soldiers should have a definite plan, and a deep conviction that what is right must be done.

Christopher Columbus had a deep conviction that there was land across the water and he began his voyage in prayer and continued in prayer. There were services held each day on board the ships and upon the discovery of land this new found land was dedicated to God.

The voice of the people is the voice of God if on the side of God, if not it is the voice of the mob. Slavery remained among the people of the Western world until the people were convinced of its evil. President Lincoln was convinced of the evil and with one stroke of his pen 3,000,000 slaves were set free, and the yoke of slavery was lifted.

God has been corroborating with men who have wrought so much for the people. The soldiers of Christ are corroborating with God and the work of God has been going on throngh all these centures and is still going on.

It was through the love of liberty, love of home and the love of their land which induced these soldiers to enlist in the war. If men and women were called on to suffer and die for their country, how much more should they sacrifice for the salvation of the people for Christ.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — MRS. EMMA IMSE, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

You, as soldiers, when you entered the war anticipated to be victorious, in truth more than expected it but knew it would come and it came. The people of the world are banding together for the salvation of the world. God is marshalling his forces and the church of God is bound to conquor.

In the dispute between Argentine and Chili regarding the boundaries there was a prospect of war, but it was left for King Edward to decide. Nations are vieing one with the other in regard to its soldiers, its navies and its ships to see which can maintain the largest and the best, and when the time comes that war would mean the annihilation of both sides then wars will have to cease. The prospects are good that disputes which may arise will be settled by arbitration. The work of evangelizing the world for God and humanity is progressing and in time peace will reign throughout the world.

Why Athletes Do Not Cheat.

Various papers have been recently commenting on a statement made by a prominent educator that the boys in our high schools and academies, who are caught cheating in class or in examination, are seldom those who are interested in athletics, and that the spirit of manliness and "fair play" demanded on the field is carried into the schoolroom.

While this is spoken of in the press as a new idea it is well known to students of athletic questions. Proper exercise under competent instructors develops the body and clears the brain. Physical culture demands a high and pure standard of living, and almost inevitably higher standards of thinking are a result. This is not an inevitable course, for exceptions are found, but the general results of increased manliness, a desire to be fair and square and win or lose on one's merits is a result expected from long experience by physical directors in our Y. M. C. A., schools and colleges.

Profesionalism in athletics is now frowned upon, as is the spirit formerly manifested to win at all costs. No more inspiring spectacle of American young manhood can be seen than at some interschool meet where the victor is cheered by all regardless of the colors he wears. Of course there is the codstant danger of overdoing athletics and making them an evil in themselves instead of the means to make a healthy body as the temple for a healthy mind, but it was a wise step when physical training took its place in our schools along with mental training.

The result has been a finer type of young man, whose ideals are high, who "plays fair," to use the schoolboy expression, and who keeps it up in after life where the problems are harder and more difficult. In the hard battle for existence that greets every schoolboy when he starts out to earn his place in the world, the lessons of self-control, of honor, the courage he had to develop in his school, are all needed as well as the mental training he has received. With these a young man who has stood well in his classes will in ten years stand far ahead of the youth who has neglected his body and whose face has borne the hectic flush instead of the rosy color of right living and the mind cultivated at the expense of the body which must execute commands.—[Christian Herald.

In a few minutes the man who did the admonishing appeared on the scene minus his brush, which was at the bottom of Crooked river. Did he say anything? Well I guess yes. He actually rehearsed some of his childhood's Sunday school lessons(?)

He was six miles from Harrison village and six miles from Norway, so he finally decided to go to the nearest farmhouse and borrow a brush, which he did. Not only one brush but two, so to be on the safe side in case of another accident.

An important matter relative to future policy of the Association will be considered at the business session.

Household Hints.

Marshmallows.

Former years our grandmothers used to prepare marshmallows from the root of this place. These days many do not know gum arabic takes its place.

Dissolve one-half pound clear white gum arabic in one pint of water. It is well to let stand over night. Strain, then add one-half pound of sugar. Stir constantly, be sure to place in a double boiler as it burns so easily, until it is of honey-like consistency. Now add the whites of four eggs, beaten to a stiff froth. Stir again for six or seven minutes. Now try them.

First sprinkle corn starch on a plate, then drop paste and let cool. The mixture should be rather thin and not adhesive. Flavor with vanilla or to taste. Cool in deep pans. Paste should be about three-quarters of an inch thick. Cut in squares, after it is chilled, with a sharp knife dipped in corn starch.

Potato Soup.

Take one potato for each person. Boil to pieces then put through a sieve. Stir into water in which potatoes have been boiled. Now add an equal amount of milk. Season with pepper, salt and butter.

Cream of asparagus is made in the same way. Also cream of celery and lettuce.

Peas and Beans.

Take one quart of stringless beans and one pint of shelled peas. Cook beans first until quite tender. Then add the peas. They should be boiled with a good-sized piece of salt pork. Season with butter, pepper and salt. Add a sprinkling of flour to thicken a very little.

Bean Croquettes.

Boil one-half pint of beans, small white ones, in a pint of water with one-half teaspoonful of soda for five minutes, pour off the water and put through cold water till the skins come off, boil the beans until tender, strain off the water and use three-quarters of boiled beans to one-quarter part soaked cracker crumbs, add a little finely minced onion and mix, adding one egg, and flour if necessary; salt to taste, shape in the usual way, fry in deep fat; serve with celery sauce made as follows: Take three heads of celery, cut in very small pieces, boil them eight minutes in water, then strain off the water and put the celery in a white sauce made of milk and a little flour for thickening; boil for about eight minutes, stirring constantly.

A MIRACLE OF THE SOIL.

Where Productive Farms Are Harvested Every Second Year.

The Palouse country in the far northwest is a panorama of rolling hills, checkered with sagebrush and great wheatfields. Close to those wastes of curious grayish tint are rich fields covered with thick stands of wheat. The soil seems to have performed a miracle in producing this lavish wealth, but those standing crops are an indisputable proof of the triumph of dry farming. The fields are harvested only every second year and always plowed very deeply, the soil being thoroughly pulverized in the odd years.

A thick blanket of dust covers the earth—good fairy in disguise, for that dust blanket protects the ground and preserves the moisture of the winter snows. Although very little rain falls during the growing season, this stored up moisture is sufficient nourishment for the production of a magnificent crop. The soil appears to have a volcanic ash that needs only seed and moisture to bear abundantly.

In raising wheat here loss is occasioned from the action of windstorms, which blow off the dust blanket and expose the seed, so every effort is made to keep the blanket on. Instead of sowing two bushels of seed to the acre, as in the east, one bushel is here sufficient. The grain is cut by headers and combination harvesters and thrashers, which also sack it right in the field.

There may be some waste from overripe grain, but this method saves the cost of stacking and shocking and in some cases reseeds the ground, resulting in a crop of young wheat very valuable for forage. This wheat grass has the same effect as clover in fertilizing, and the green fields add to the attractiveness of the landscape, standing side by side with fields of yellow wheat and black dust of summer fallowed tracts, with a touch of sagebrush now and then for contrast.

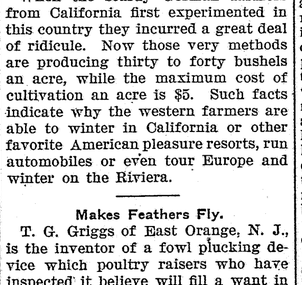

When the sturdy German farmers from California first experimented in this country they incurred a great deal of ridicule. Now those very methods are producing thirty to forty bushels an acre, while the maximum cost of cultivation an acre is $5. Such facts indicate why the western farmers are able to winter in California or other favorite American pleasure resorts, run automobiles or even tour Europe and winter on the Riviera.

Makes Feathers Fly.

T. G. Griggs of East Orange, N. J., is the inventor of a fowl plucking device which poultry raisers who have inspected it believe will fill a want in the industry. Other machines have been invented to do the work which Griggs provides for in his machine, but none has heretofore been anything more than an interesting piece of machinery with little practical worth.

Griggs departs from the lines followed in other machines and introduces an entirely new method. The fowl to be plucked is placed on an endless traveling belt and carried through a series of fingers, which are so arranged that they go over the entire bird, plucking it clean of feathers. The danger of tearing the skin is avoided by the simple expedient of having the fingers clutch only a few feathers at a time. The size of the bird is no factor whatever. It will stay in the machine until plucked, whether large or small. A pneumatic tube carries away the feathers as fast as they are removed. Griggs is a civil engineer and never raised a chicken in his life, but he noticed a few years ago, while visiting a friend who runs a poultry farm, that the labor of removing feathers from the birds was one of the chief items of cost in preparing the product for market. It is said that the owner of one of his machines will be able to reduce his expenses by 20 per cent.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes:

"My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

Abused Dirt Road.

Although over 90 per cent. of our public roads are earth roads, we very rarely ever hear any one speak of these roads in terms of appreciation. Curses and denunciations are heaped upon them daily and nothing too mean can be said about them. Yet, they deserve something better, for they have always been with us, and, while they probably have not served us so well, yet they have served us faithfully.

The fact that these roads so often excite our disapproval and condemnation, is not so much due to them as it is to our methods of treating them. For centuries it has been customary to neglect and abuse our earth roads and then revile them because they were so bad while the real wonder is that they are not worse.

As a matter of self interest we should appreciate more fully the value of this type of road and change our attitude towards it, and the sooner we do this, the better for us. Of course, an earth road can not be made to take the place of macadam or other stone roads, but with proper construction and maintenance, they can be so improved as to meet all requirements of ordinary traffic in many localities. By adopting more careful methods of construction and proper maintenance, they can be so transformed with little cost that they will scarcely be recognizable as the roads with which we were formerly acquainted. Good earth roads are logical roads to be constructed in many localities, and they are within the financial means of nearly every community throughout the country. For this reason, the question is not "can we have better roads," but "will we have them?"

Proper drainage is one of the first considerations in road improvement. Water is one of the most destructive agencies to improved roads. Therefore, it is essential that the water be removed from the roads if we expect them to remain in a passable condition. All drainage, however, must be adopted to soil and climate conditions.

No road, however, will long endure without proper maintenance. This is more true, perhaps, of earth roads than any other, for the reason that melting snow or rain often softens the surface and passing traffic produces ruts and depressions. If these are allowed to remain they will retain water at each succeeding rain and more and deeper ruts will be formed and the road eventually become almost impassable. It is very important, therefore, that proper maintenance be kept up if the roads are to remain in a condition at all satisfactory.—[Good Roads.

Potato Growing; When to Spray and How.

Begin when the tops are six or eight inches high and spray every ten days, every week if the weather is very cloudy and rainy, until the last of August or the first of September, or later if necessary.

In any event spraying must be begun some days before the average observer will detect blight on the leaves and the foliage should be kept well coated with Bordeaux Mixture up to the time the crop is harvested or the tops are killed by frost. Do not stop for rainy days; this is just the time when late blight spores are formed in profusion and when infection most easily takes place. It is possible for a spraying just before a rain, even though it is largely washed off, to do more actual good than any other during the season. Moreover, properly prepared Bordeaux Mixture, if thoroughly applied, will withstand washing if it once thoroughly dries on the leaves. The best results are obtained when the mixture is forcibly applied in the form of a fine mist, not in coarse drops sprinkled over the foliage.

Do not limit the amount applied per acre to an arbitrary number of gallons, but use enough at each application to thoroughly coat the foliage whether it requires 50, 100 or 150 gallons per acre. Use a pump powerful enough to develop a pressure of at least 60 pounds with all the nozzles open.

Usually six and sometimes four sprayings are sufficient to protect against late blight, but the leaves should show a coating of Bordeaux from the time the spraying begins till the crop is harvested or the tops are killed by frost. One thorough spraying in rainy weather before late blight has gained a foothold may be the most effective application of the season. If early blight is prevalent five or six very thorough sprayings, beginning early in the season, are necessary to secure sufficient protection.

What a Great Man Said to the Great American People.

Parisian Sage is a discovery of a celebrated scientist, who spent the best years of his life perfecting this great hair tonic.

In giving his recipe to the American people he said: "Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. It cures dandruff by killing the germs that infest the roots of the hair; it stops falling hair; it gives vigor and strength to the hair roots. Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, sells Parisian Sage at 50 cents a large bottle and guarantees it to do all that is claimed for it, or your money is refunded. It stops falling hair, dandruff and itching scalp in two weeks. 22&24

Production of Market Milk.

Requirements.—Now that the season in which dairymen experience the most trying difficulties in marketing sweet milk is near at hand, each party should bear in mind two requisites in the production of market milk, namely, the prevention of dirt from gaining access to milk, and the immediate application of cold.

Conditions in the Barn.—To fulfill the first requisite the conditions in the dairy barn are of prime importance. The ceiling over the cows should be tightly sheathed with matched boards so as to prevent dirt falling from the mows overhead; the walls should be clean and the floor tight and impervious to water to a great extent; the manger should be so constructed as to be easily swept out and cleaned. Further, the platform on which the cows stand should be raised a few inches in order to keep the animals clean. All in all the barn should be so constructed as to be readily cleaned with little labor and at the same time free from dust and other contaminating conditions.

Clean Cows.—The cows should be brushed and kept clean, and in order to accomplish this with the least labor, hay should be fed after milking rather than before, owing to the great amount of dust which fills the air at the time of feeding. It is also an excellent plan to moisten and wipe the udder with a damp cloth just before milking in order to remove the loose dirt and hairs which always fall at the time of milking. The purpose is to prevent as much as possible the access of dirt into the milk pail.

Milk Pails.—In the choice of milk pails the narrow top pail should be used in preference to the common large open pail because of the greater amount of dirt which the hood of the former type will keep out. All seams and cracks of each pail should be filled with solder and finished smoothly so as to be readily cleansed and sterilized.

Milking.—The milker should be cleanly in person and clad in clothes free from loose dirt which is apt to find access in the milk pail. He should have clean, dry hands; wetting the hands with milk is a most unclean practice and should not be permitted in any dairy.

Remove the Milk from the Stables.—Milk absorbs odors readily. For this reason it should be removed immediately to the milk room to be cooled. Most of the foul odors and bad flavors in milk can be traced to the absorption of odors in poorly ventilated dairy barns and to the presence of foreign matter. Such odors as emanate from fertilizer, ensilage and also turnips are quickly absorbed by milk.

Cooling Milk.—In cooling milk and for the storage of the same every dairyman needs a liberal supply of ice and a cooling tank for storage purposes. In case, however, there is a spring of cold running water near at hand this will afford an excellent place for cooling and storing milk. If kept at a temperature of 50 degrees or less it will remain sweet for days, bacterial growth being retarded at 50 degrees and amounting to very little at a temperature less than 45 degrees. To cool milk many dairymen now use an aerator and cooler in which the milk flows over a smooth surface cooled by means of ice water. Aeration as applied to milk simply means exposure to the air in order to cool and allow any odors that may be present to pass off. This practice has no advantages, but many disadvantages, chief of which is the exposure to contamination in contact with air. Many experiments have been made by experiment stations and practical dairymen which lead to the conclusion that it is not necessary or conducive to the best keeping qualities of milk to practice aeration. The method of treating milk as now advocated is as follows: Immediately after milking strain the milk into common eight quart cans or shotgun cans, cover tightly and then place in the cooling tank. All of the milk in cans of this size is within five inches of the cold water or ice surrounding it, and will soon cool without stirring or exposure to air. Milk cooled in a tight can without contact with air has been found to remain sweet longer and be of better flavor than aerated milk. Experiments in treating milk in this way have been carried out by creamery patrons during the months of July and August with the result that milk in every case arrived in sweet condition at the creamery.—[Asst. Dairy Inspector, Maine.

NORTH CHATHAM, N. H.

Mrs. Mary Ann Stevens,

Mrs. Mary Ann Stevens died at Richard Chandler's Thursday, May 19, at the advanced age of 91 years and 7 months.

Mrs. Stevens was born and reared in the town of Fryeburg, at the old ancestral home of the Stevens, her father being one of the pioneers of that town. In earlier life she married Samuel Stevens. In the meantime he built the home for him and his wife which they resided in up to the time of his death. Six children were born to them. Two died in infancy and the other four, one son and three daughters lived to be married and go to homes of their own. Hazen W. married Sarah Fife and went to live with his father and mother.

In 1881 Mr. Stevens died, leaving his wife to the care of the son. She remained with him a few years and then came to live with Nettie, the youngest child, with whom she lived up to the time of her death.

She died with that dreaded disease of old folks, pneumonia, and was tenderly cared for by Richard and his wife, Ella coming to lend a hand in her last days.

Mrs. Stevens was an esteemed lady, a dear mother and was called by many Aunt Mary Ann. She was buried Saturday, amid a profusion of pansies and apple blossoms. Rev. Mr. Reeves of Lovell spoke words of comfort to the mourning friends. Interment was at West Fryeburg beside her husband.

Charles Chandler has several boarders.

Farmers are nearly done planting. Grass promises a good crop.

Eagle Grange had an all-day meeting, May 28. Third and fourth degrees were conferred. Entertained by the Brothers.

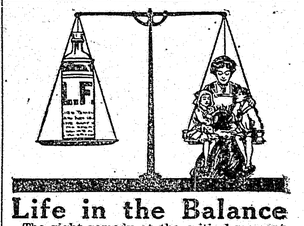

Graphite Replacing Lead In Paint.

The growing exclusion of lead from paint on the ground of its poisonous character has led to the introduction of graphite as a substitute, particularly in the place of red lead in the painting of iron. Mixed with linseed oil, graphite protects iron well against rust and is much cheaper than red lead. So many new uses have been found for graphite, which not long ago was employed almost exclusively for the manufacture of lead pencils, that large quantities are now made with the electric furnace, the natural deposit of the mineral not being sufficient to supply the demand.

We forgot our age a few nights ago and were persuaded to join a party hanging May baskets. We were unfortunate or fortunate, enough to be caught by a young lady who gave us a hearty kiss as a penalty for running slow. And since then we have rather desired another invitation to go hanging May baskets. Ours arrived later in the form of twin kittens which we were pleased greatly to receive.

With proper respect to our scientific men and others who have made so much talk about Halley's comet, in our humble opinion this much heralded wonder of the heavens is a dismal failure as viewed by ordinary human eyes. We were quite a small boy back in the early '80s when we saw a comet that put Halley's far in the shade. The tail was perhaps not so long but far more brilliant and it was a magnificant spectacle in the early hours of the morning, giving one a feeling of awe and wonder at its splendor. Halley's, as viewed by your correspondent, is only a very pale imitation of the comet we saw at the time referred to.

Memorial Services.

Saturday, May 28, was appointed for a visit to our village by the Geo. M. Knight Woman's Relief Corps of North Waterford to decorate the graves of deceased soldiers in Elmvale cemetery.

At 11 o'clock a. m. a handsome delegation of the W. R. C. and members of Geo. F. Leppien Post, G. A. R., of East Stoneham arrived at Grange hall, where they were gladly welcomed by the resident comrades, and under the command of Comrade Henry Plummer of Wm. K. Kimball Post, G. A. R., of South Paris, acting marshal of the day, a procession was formed and together they all marched to the cemetery, the ladies of the W. R. C. leading, four guides with flags in regular order, comrades in rear carrying flags and wreaths for decoration. On arriving at the cemetery the company proceeded to the grave of Comrade Josiah Weeks, who was most recently buried, and forming in circle, the guides in position at the corners of the grave, the solemn service of the Grand Army of the Republic was recited by the marshal and by Chaplain McKeen of Leppien Post.

Then they proceeded to the service of decoration in which the comrades and ladies generally participated. At the conclusion of this service, those present assembled near the cemetery gates and held a brief meeting for a service of commemoration. By request of Marshal Plummer, America was sung. Comrade Granville Fernald read "The Bivouac of the Dead." Rev. G. W. Sias gave a brief address, paying tribute to the character and memory of the patriotic soldiers of the Republic, and the duty of the American people to keep ever in sacred remembrance their services and sacrifices in presenting to their posterity the priceless blessings of national liberty and union.

After returning to the hall, the visitors and resident friends assembled in the small dining-room and engaged in an interesting discussion of the elegant and delicious picnic collation furnished forth from sundry boxes, baskets and paper bags.
